

FILM SCREENING

eggsploitation

Best Documentary of the Year
at California Independent Film Festival

The infertility industry in the United States has grown to a multi-billion dollar business. What is its main commodity? Human eggs. Young women all over the world are solicited by ads. But who is this egg donor? Is she treated justly? What are the short- and long-term risks to her health?

Monday, March 14, 2011 • 6:00 p.m.

Loyola Marymount University
1 LMU Drive, Los Angeles, CA 90045
University Hall, ECC 1857

Jennifer Lahl, producer, director, and writer of the documentary, Christopher Kaczor, Professor of Philosophy, and Erin Stackle, Assistant Professor of Philosophy at LMU, will participate in a post-screening panel discussion on:

Human Freedom and Reproductive License:

The Ethics of Egg Donation

Free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served. For more information, please contact LMU Republican Club at lmurepublicans@gmail.com.

Co-Sponsored by The Intercollegiate Studies Institute, Department of Philosophy, T. Marie Chilton Chair of Catholic Theology, Department of Theological Studies, Republican Club at LMU, and The Center of Bioethics and Culture Network.

www.isi.org