“The Rule of Law in a Free Society: Prospects for Law”

ISI HOSTS 2009 EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE AT JOHN JAY COLLEGE

- WHO: The Intercollegiate Studies Institute in co-sponsorship with John Jay College of Criminal Justice and The Manhattan Institute, is hosting an educational conference on "The Rule of Law in Free Society: The Prospects for Law Enforcement." Several highly regarded scholars and speakers will address the audience including Heather Mac Donald, John M. Olin Fellow, Manhattan Institute, Delores Jones-Brown, Director of the Center on Race, Crime, and Justice, John Jay College, George Kelling, Professor, Rutgers University School of Criminal Justice and Senior Fellow, Manhattan Institute, and Jose Cordero, Director of "Gangs, Guns, and Violent Crime," New Jersey.
- WHAT: ISI will convene a half-day conference in Haaren Hall at John Jay College of Criminal Justice. This conference will address concerns about the way media attention and public scrutiny, as well as policies and procedures, have a direct bearing upon the application of arrest powers and the use of force by police officers. The conference will be exploring topics such as "The Myths of Racial Profiling," "The Realities of Racial Profiling: The Impact on Crime, Police Legitimacy, and Community Relations," "View from the Beat: How can Law Enforcement Support Community Policing?" and "The Dynamics of Effective Policing: Legitimizing What Works."
- WHERE: John Jay College of Criminal Justice
Haaren Hall, 6th Floor, Room 630-T
899 10th Avenue (Between 58th & 59th Streets)
New York City, NY
- WHEN: Thursday, December 3, 2009: 12:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m.
