MEDIA ALERT

ISI Cosponsors lecture at Wofford College by former U.S. Senator, Rick Santorum

- WHO: The Intercollegiate Studies Institute (ISI), a national educational organization headquartered in Wilmington, Delaware, invites you to attend a lecture by former U.S. Senator Rick Santorum (R-PA); senior fellow at the Ethics and Public Policy Center; and author of The New York Times bestseller, It Takes a Family: Conservatism and the Common Good (ISI Books, 2005).
- WHAT: The topic of Santorum's lecture is "The Gathering Storm of the 21st Century" and is cosponsored by ISI and the Ethics and Public Policy Center. Santorum will address the challenges posed by radical Islamic fascism and its growing alliances around the world.
- WHEN: Tuesday, February 21, 2008, at 4:00 p.m.
- WHERE: McMillan Theater
The Campus Life Building
Wofford College
Spartanburg, South Carolina
- WHY: Santorum will address the growing threat of our enemies in a speech that will define the unique challenges that confront the United States as we fight another global war. Now more than ever, Senator Santorum believes that we need to study the past, learn from previous events, and take proactive measures to protect our freedoms in order to provide a safer world in which to exercise the liberties we hold dear.

Founded in 1953, ISI works "to educate for liberty" — to identify the best and brightest college students and to nurture in these future leaders the American ideal of ordered liberty.
